2 As the accounts for the year 1955-56 have not yet been compiled in the Commissioner's Office the actual closing balance of the Corporation under both service and debt heads could not be ascertained Hence, the closing balance in the revised estimates of the Corporation for the year 1955-56 has been provisionally accepted as the opening balance for the year 1956-57

3 Although it was observed by Government in G O No L 2518-24/C I 10-55-4 dated 8-6-1955 that the cash account balances under debt heads should be reconciled with the ledger accounts of the Corporation very early, no such reconciliation has been effected so far In the absence of such correct debt head accounts it is not possible to assess the financial condition of the Corporation The Corporation may be requested to arrange for the reconciliation of the cash account balances under debt heads with the ledger accounts very early

4- There are some defects noticed in the classification of items For example, Slum Improvement grant, Loans (Capital-receipts), and Loan for Low Income Group Housing Schemes are accounted for under "F Special Receipts' under the Revenue Heads, whereas they should be accounted for under "Debt Heads " Correct classifications in such cases should be adopted by the Corporation, in future, in consultation with the Auditor

5 With the modifications proposed by this Office, the closing balance would be Rs 1,54,079/- as against the prescribed closing balance of R 1,00,000/-

6 Under Section 167(1) of the City of Bangalore Municipal Corporation Act 1949, the budget for the year 1956-57 should have been passed by the Corporation and forwarded to the Government for sanction, before the beginning of the official year But there has been some delay in the forwardal of the same Such delays may be avoided in future

EXPENDITURE
62.K Education Cess	2,25,000	2,46,150	Provision is made as per contra entry on the receipt side with additional provisi for payment of arrears of Education Cess collected dur 195-56
63 K Health Cess	1,24,200	1,33,931	Provision is made as per cont entry on the receipt side wi additional provision for pay- ment of arrears of Health Ce collected during 1955-56

With the modifications proposed above, the abstract figures of the Budget will be as follows:-

	Service Head	Debt Head	Total
Opening Balance on 1-4-56	7,42,458	(-) 3,47,087	3,95,371
Receipts during 56-57	103,41,108	16,83,881	1,20,24,989
TOTAL	1,10,83,566	13,36,794	1,24,20,360
Expenditure during 1956-57	1,05,72,000	16,94,281	1,22,66,281
Closing balance on 31-3-1957	5,11,566	(-) 3,57,487	1,54,079

It is seen that as the accounts for the year 1955-56 have not yet been completed in the Commissioner's office, the actual closing balance of the Corporation under both service and debt heads could not be ascertained Hence, the closing balance in the revised estimates of the Corporation for the ~~ex~~ year 1955-56 have been provisionally accepted as the opening balance for the year 1956-57

Although it was already observed by Government in Government Order No L 2518-24/CM 10-55-4 dated 8-6-1955 that the cash account balances under debt heads should be reconciled with the ~~ledger~~ ledger accounts of the Corpoation very early, no such reconciliation has been effected so far In the absence of such correct debt head accounts it is not possible to assess the financial condition of the Corporation The Commissioner, Corporation of the City of Bangalore is therefore requ

to arrange for the reconciliation of the cash account balances under Debt heads with the leger accounts very early.

There are some defects noticed in the classification of items, for example, slum improvement grant, loans,(capital and receipts) and loan for Low Income Group Housing Schemes are accounted for urder "F Special Receipts" under the Revenue Heads, whereas they should be accounted for under "Debt Heads" Correct classifications in such cases should be adopted by the Corporaton in future in consultation with the Auditor.

With the modifications proposed as above, the closing balance would be Rs 1,54,079/- as against the prescribed closing balance of Rs 1,00,000/-

Under Section 167 (1) of the City of Bangalore Municipal Corporation Act, 1949, the Corporation should have passed and forwarded the Budget for the year 1956-57 to the Government for sanction before the beginning of the official year But, there has been some delay the forwardal of the same. Such delays should be avoided in future

VIEWS OF Mr RAMADASAPPA MYSORE
ON
MYSORE STATE AND RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT

The Government Order of the 17th May 1938 which avowedly lays down the policy of the Government in regard to the recognition of the Mysore State Congress as a political party ' which has declared its aim to be the attainment of Responsible Government under the aegis of His Highness the Maharaja naturally leads one to enquire whether its implications are in consonance with the basic principles of the Mysore Constitution as it stands to day As no such enquiry can be deemed as sufficiently comprehensive without a knowledge of (1) Constitution of Indian States in general and (2) Constitutional Government in Mysore in particular we proceed to examine them seriatim —

(1) Constitution of Indian States

Indian States though not situate in British India are nevertheless under the suzerainty of His Majesty the King Emperor which in the case of 175 States inclusive of premier ones is exercised by the Government of India and in the case of the remaining ones numbering about 500 is entrusted to the Provincial Governments the political status of each State being dependent more upon its territorial impor tance than on the ruling authority The conception of sovereignty as applied to these States is rather peculiar inasmuch as soveriegn rights or attributes such as the right to make war or peace the right of foreign negotiations the right to legislate the right to administer civil and criminal justice are generally held to be divisible As no Indian Prince enjoys all the soveriegn rights under the accepted suzerainty of the British Crown no ruler of an Indian State can be deemed as Independent With the expansion of British dominion in India and the gradual admission of Indian States into relations with the Suzerain Power there was a gradual falling off in the ruling authority of Indian Princes who were first dealt with as sovereigns as understood in International law but were at last reduced to the position of subordinate alliance and co operation as the result of the transfer of Government of India to the Crown in November 1858 The last vestiges of the royal house at Delhi wrote Lord Canning in 1860 from which we had long been content to accept a vicarious authority have been swept away The Crown of England stands forth the unquestioned ruler and paramount in all India and is brought face to face with its feudatories Forthwith did the Suzerain cast off all reserve as to his power of interference to prevent misrule and the distinction between Independent and dependent States came to an end Thus the Indian protectorate and British India formed one care and one political system which the Moghuls had but attempted to contemplate and the Mahrattas had but seldom dreamt of

Nevertheless Indian Princes have their own rights and obligations as estab lished by written agreements by tacit consent or by usage The Suzerain Power acts for the Princes in all external affairs and scrupulously respects their rights as rulers of their respective States They are allowed to participate in the blessings of British rule such as commerce the railways the courts and the marl ets of British India while their subjects though foreigners in the eye of the law of British India are admitted into many of the public offices of the British Government Naturally enough the Princes have got to fulfil corresponding obligations which may be considered under following heads —1 Those that relate to foreign relations 2 Those affecting the common defence and 3 Those neces sary for the good Government and welfare of the States themselves which vary with the extent of powers of Government left with the respective Princes when they were admitted into the protectorate In regard to the duties noted under the third head, though old treaties have laid down that the British Government will have no manner of concern with a Prince's dependents or servants, 'with respect to whom the Maharaja is absolute,' the former have upheld the principle which Lord Canning set forth in his minute of April 30, 1860, that the Government of India is not precluded from stepping in to set right such serious abuses in a Native Government as may threaten any part of the country with anarchy or disturbance, nor from assuming temporary charge of a Native State when there shall be sufficient reason to do so, the Governor General in Council, subject to the control provided by Parliament, being the sole judge of such necessity for interference Hence liability to intervention in case of misrule attaches to all Indian States The Government of India have not hesitated to honour the rights of Indian Princes, to help them with the loaning of their trained officers, to render financial and other aid in times of famine and to confer on them and their subjects such honours and distinctions as may be in their power to grant By their own method of administration they have set an object lesson to the Princes and expect them to follow their example The institutions of Indian India are no doubt influenced very much by the great example, but there are States and States with varying capacities to assimilate new ideas, with the result that there are at present States in almost every stage of development In one word everyone of the Indian Princes is not merely to reign but to rule, as "the common features of all of them, even of those which are most advanced, are the personal rule of the chief and his control over legislation and the administration of justice

(2) Constitutional Government in Mysore

If the Mysore Constitution is traced in some details from the start, it is with the express object of pointing to its salient features as originally conceived and ever after developed on the same lines, which have served their purpose so admirably that they might well form a model for other States to follow Ever since its restoration to its lawful Ruler in 1799, Mysore has occupied an unique position in the concern and regard of the Paramount Power In the course of his despatch of 16th April, 1867, with reference to His Highness the Maharaja Krishnaraja Wadiar III s claims for the recognition of his adopted son Sri Chamaraja Wadiar as his heir and successor to the throne, Sir Stafford Northcote, the then Secretary of State for India, observed "Without entering upon any minute examination of the terms of the treaties of 1799, Her Majesty s Government recognise in the policy which dictated that settlement a desire to provide for the maintenance of an Indian dynasty on the throne of Mysore upon terms which should at once afford a guarantee for the good Government of the people and for the security of British rights and interests and in the present case more especially, having regard to the antiquity of the Maharaja s Family, its long connection with Mysore and the personal loyalty and attachment to the British Government which His Highness has so conspicuously manifested, Her Majesty desires to maintain that family on the throne in the person of His Highness adopted son upon terms corresponding with those made in 1779 so far as the altered circumstances of the present time will allow

"In considering the stipulations which will be necessary to give effect to this arrangement, I have, in the first place, to observe that Her Majesty s Government cannot but feel a peculiar interest in the welfare of those who have now for so long a period been subject to their direct administration and that they will feel it their duty before replacing them under the rule of a native sovereign to take all the pains they can with the education of that sovereign and also to enter into a distinct agreement with him as to the principles upon which he shall administer the country and to take sufficient securities for the agreement"

Such in brief were the main features of a deeply considered policy which determined the continuance of Indian rule in Mysore Again on a reference being made in 1875 by the Marquis of Salisbury, the then Secretary of State for India, as to the necessity and importance of adapting the administrative machinery to the young Maharaja s rule at the forthcoming rendition with necessary guarantees for continuity of policy the Government of India in their letter of November of the same year laid down certain conditions as being incidental to the investiture of His Highness Sri Chamaraja Wadiar with the full powers of the Executive Government, the said conditions being held to form something of a constitution for Mysore which was not liable to be changed without the assent of the British Government Sir James Gordon the Chief Commissioner while conveying his concurrence to the principles and propositions as formulated by the Government of India with reference to the said despatch laid special stress on the advisability of maintaining a suitable and efficient machinery for the administration of the State and other allied topics incidentally suggested as a subsidiary measure to the advisory council that had been proposed by the Government of India the formation of a deliberative assembly composed of eminent retired officials repre sentatives of great local families and representatives of the various sections and interests of the people before whom all proposed legislation important measures of administrative reform and budget appropriations of public money might be placed for discu sion and opinion It was pointed out that such an assembly would be a double blessing —in that it would provide the Executive with a healthy public opinion on all proposed measures without interfering with their liberty of action and afford to the leading representatives a field of public activity and distinction But the Government of India held that it was premature to introduce such an institution as none such had been tried or found to have succeeded elsewhere in British India under similar circumstances Finally after nearly five years of careful and anxious consultation with the Chief Commissioner on the one hand and the Secretary of State on the other the Government of India laid down on the 3rd March 1880 the policy of internal administration in the following words —

On the 3rd March 1880 the Government of India informed the Secretary of State that the Chief Commissioner had frequently discussed with and explained to the Maharaja the administrative changes which were being made or were contemplated and the nature of the political institutions over which His Highness was to preside With regard to the extent to which the direction of the adminis tration would remain in the hands of the Maharaja himself the Government of India communicated their views to the Secretary of State in these words— It has never been intended that His Highness personal authority in State affairs should be other than wide and substantial or that the powers entrusted to the Dewan or to the Council should be exercised independently of the State s Ruler It is most difficult on the one hand to define beforehand with any precision the share of authority to be retained in His Highness hands without producing the appearance if not the effect of limiting that authority and this we desire not to do formally On the other hand it is not easy to settle any exact limitations other than rules of procedure in the transaction of business upon the powers either of the Dewan or the Council which will not in practice be considered as giving them some indepen dent authority within those limitations According to the system we would introduce no councillor or ministerial officer would have any constitutional power to act independently of the Maharaja or to issue orders except in His Highness name and subject to His Highness revision Thus the chief authority and the ultimate Governmental responsibility would in all classes rest actually as well as nominally with the States Ruler But we consider it essential under this system of personal Government to provide that all important acts and orders shall necessarily have passed through certain departmental formalities and shall have undergone certain regular processes of examination and joint consultation before they issue in the Maharaja s name and by his will Moreover since it is obviously necessary that a large part of the details of current business should be disposed of by His Highness ministers it is equally necessary that these ministers should have defined duties and responsibilities For these reasons and with these objects we consider it expedient to give the official advisers and chief ministerial officers a voice in all important deliberation and the right to place on record their views regarding any matter of consequence affecting the administration of the country

Unless some such foothold in the system of Government is secured to the members of the Council, they can scarcely be held answerable either for the proper discharge of their departmental duties or for the advice which they may give to the Maharaja and their influence and utility will be proportionately slight But beyond this privilege of advising and or recording their advice, the proposed measures would confer upon them no separate status "

On the 12th August, 1880, Lord Hartington, the Secretary of State, in his despatch to the Viceroy, Marquis of Ripon, conveyed the approval of Her Majesty's Government to the draft Instrument of Transfer wherein were embodied the conditions under which His Highness the young Maharaja was to assume the possession of his State and which defined in an authoritative manner what his political relations should be in future with the Paramount Power, as also to the recommendations of the Government of India as regards the Maharaja s substantial share in the work of Government in consultation with his chief advisers in all important deliberations relating to State affairs The said Instrument of Transfer which was virtually a memorandum of instructions of course continued to be in force till it was replaced by the Treaty of Mysore in 1913 between the British Government and His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore The Treaty is no doubt a personal compliment to His Highness' enlightened rule and a credit to the State It is an improvement upon the Instrument to some extent in its matter as also its manner The political relations between the Paramount Power and the State naturally remain the same in substance, as borne out by existing provisions of the Treaty, with special reference to those contained in Articles 19 and 21 which run as follows —

Article 19 —No material change in the system of administration now in force shall be made without the consent of the Governor General in Council

* * * *

Article 21 —While disclaiming any desire to interfere with the freedom of the Maharaja of Mysore in the internal administration of his State in matters not expressly provided for herein, the Governor General in Council reserves to himself the power of exercising intervention, in case of necessity, by virtue of the general supremacy and paramount authority vested in him, as also the power of taking such precautionary or remedial action as circumstances may at any time appear to render necessary to provide adequately for the good Government of the people of Mysore or for the security of British rights and interests within that State

Growth of the Constitution since the Rendition

Politically the position of Mysore is unique inasmuch as its inhabitants grew up for about two generations under British Rule and have since had the benefits of a progressive constitutional Government which first provided for a Representative Assembly and next for a Legislative Council and Local Self Govern ment for another two generations with their own illustrious sovereigns at its head Over a century s contact with European settlers in the country, who have been a great example for energy and enterprise, has not failed to produce its own beneficial effects on their neighbours There is not the slightest trace of autocracy or of cleavage of interests between the sovereign and his subjects, unlike in hundreds of other Indian States where despotism and even opposition of interests have still been the standing evils of the administration No effort is spared to add steadily to the moral and material prosperity of the country, and Constitutional Reforms inaugurated at the Rendition are being pushed on from time to time It was so recently as in March, 1924, that the old Representative Assembly and the Legislative Council were formally placed on statutory basis on the lines suggested by the Seal Committee specially appointed for the purpose Accordingly, the strength of the Legislative Council was so substantially raised that it could enjoy its own statutory non official majority, and it further acquired by its power of voting an effective voice in the shaping of the financial policy of the State Members of both Houses have for years been allowed to associate themselves in the everyday administration of the important departments of the State by opportunities afforded to them to serve on various Standing Committees They may further promote the rural and economic uplift by serving on the Development Boards The fundamental principles on which the Mysore Constitution is founded, fostered and developed are thus summed up in a few words by the Marquis of Zetland the present Secretary of State for India in the course of his observations on the Mysore Constitutional reforms as visualised in the Seal Committee Report —

The committee while not ignoring the present day tendencies based its proposals on Indian rather than Western theory and gave expression to Indian rather than to European ideals The basic fact of such a constitution was the assumption that the head of the State was the supreme executive authority as well as the source and sanction of law The sovereign of an Indian State was regarded as representing the people directly and primarily in his person and as standing in a more direct and vital relationship to them than the members of any representative body He might seek the advice of individuals or of corporations he might delegate his functions to individuals or to chambers but he remained the head of the body politic such other limbs as might evolve or be created being but subordinate members—organs of one will centred in the head wherein rested the permanent reservoir of law making power While this was the recognised position of the head of the State the object of the introduction into the constitution of other bodies was in the main to provide machinery for perfecting the process by which effect was given in the domain of legislation and of administration to the one undivided Will of the State These weighty words speak for themselves and call for no comments as to the position His Highness holds in the Constitution

Government Order Reviewed

Now to review the Government Order under reference in the light of what is stated in the foregoing paragraphs Believing that the Mysore State Congress will act in a manner befitting a party which has declared its aim to be the attainment of Responsible Government His Highness Government says the Order are prepared to recognise the Mysore State Congress as a political organization The Government having thus conceded that members of the Congress can be drawn into a political camp of their own with their own slogans others serving on our representative institutions must stand apart from them to form their own organization with their own war cry thus inevitably giving rise to a process of dichotomy amongst those who were hitherto as they should always be a homogeneous body of subjects with the sovereign at their head the two entities with existing laws and regulations forming the body politic We have heard of political parties existing in many a modern country of note and that as the inevitable outcome of government by representation In the orthodox language of modern historians and politicians the party or parliamentary or Responsible Government connotes the same idea Is the Government of Mysore as conducted at present by His Highness the Maharaja with the aid of the Executive appointed by him a Government by representation ? If not why this anomaly of political parties in the legislature ? Now it is up to the Government to account for the strange phenomenon of political parties in a monarchical constitution as otherwise their existence and true meaning will remain inexplicable Congressmen of course borrow their light from across the border and appear with their caps flag and war cry in their own block specially reserved for them in both Houses But what about their rivals in the House as to their christening and political creed ? But the truth is that the chances of impending evolution will be different The local Congress will as the magic rod of Moses did the serpents of Egyptian sorcerers swallow up its rival or rivals and form a formidable opposition consistently displaying a hostile front Viewed from any standpoint the existence of political parties in our midst especially of such as have now been in evidence is open to grave objections We may incidentally observe that His Highness Government being but an aspect of his sovereignty the identity of His Highness and His Highness Government should never be lost sight of, as has unhappily been done in the Government Order of 19th May 1938

Evils of the Party System

Let us look at the English party system which is said to be the best of its kind, and see if it is an unmixed good The evils incidental to the party system are many In order to cement a divided party, or to promote the zeal of a dejected one, there is generally a tendency to bolster up questions for which there is no genuine desire There is the strongest desire for popular election cry as also for an attractive programme Public opinion is manufactured, and agitation is artificially stimulated Questions are pushed to the forefront, not in view of the public good but simply for party purposes At times when the pressure of the rank and file becomes irresistible, the leaders hold out ill considered hopes Rash pledges are offered, and the party as a whole is embarrassed Premature and mischievous legislation is resorted to as a panacea for all these ills When due to defects inherent in the system of voting in the legislature, even a capable member of the House of Commons is obliged to vote often automatically for his party, what can be said of an average representative in an Indian State, whose literacy is little, information less and judgment least? In England, the increase of the national expenditure and the extension of the electorate are apt to go together In 1935, out of a total population of 46 051,679 in England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland, no fewer than 31,379,050 were on the electorate The question whether such masses exercise the wisdom and the self restraint required for their own Government is asked again and again, but has yet to be answered The fate of India s multitudinous people—now grown to over 300 million, if the Indian States were included, may easily be imagined when Govern ment is transferred from the hands of experienced British bureaucracy to those of inexperienced Indian politicians chosen by an electorate constructed somehow out of a population of which more than 90 per cent are illiterate and unable to com prehend the meaning of a vote The less said of the electorate in Mysore, the better The acquittance register of the Mysore Representative Assembly may show how many members can correctly spell or write their names The well meant efforts to impose democracy upon India have lead to grave apprehensions as to what might happen with its wider application The Indian National Congress—the largest political party which first threatened to boycott in order to destroy the Constitution, provided in reference to its own clamour, is now in power in seven Provinces making itself notorious for its abnoxious legislation, romantic schemes and crusade against God and religion—all these pressed into service in the name of the coming millenium!

Political Creed of the State Congress

The political creed which our Mysore patriots of the Congress brand have learnt at the feet of their Paramagurus of British India may be summed up in a few words "That all patriotism, knowledge and wisdom is concentrated in the National Indian Congress, and its westernised leaders, that the Responsible Government as adopted by the Congress is best suited for adoption throughout British and Indian India, and that India knows only the autocratic, personal and absolute rule, depending upon the personal equation of the ruler and consequently not suitable to the present needs of the country" Here is the comment on the foregoing text from a person who is said "to be one of the best, sanest and well informed of the Congress leaders —"We see a perpetual revolution taking place before our eyes and we should take advantage of the same Mere 'Law and Order carry us no where The people of are in advance of the people elsewhere in education, and fully entitled to ask for, and secure self government now and here and that they are far away from the fringe of Responsible Govern ment They should assert their voice in the affairs of the State securing responsibility' Let it be remembered that many of our people who are deeply emotional [redacted]king in discrimination fall an easy prey to lies half truths or misrep[redacted]tions of the interested few and contribute to swell the rank and file of th[redacted] Congress party as in British India The sad scenes that have for sometime p[redacted]been enacted here, there and everywhere in the State have filled the hearts of [redacted]inking men with despair For one has yet to see another court like that of our [redacted]loved Maharaja who is a constitutional ruler every inch of him whose versatile tastes and talents have made his country a beauty spot and whose religion and philosophy have made him pious and beneficent to all Ours again is a consti tutional Government whose essence is that its executive powers are limited by legal restrictions as contained in some written or convention al constitution and such prero[redacted]ative powers as may remain to it are in reality to a great extent popular privileges While the Executive are responsible to His Highness for good behaviour the latter is responsible directly to the Paramount Power and indirectly to his people for the good Government of the country Can any loyal subject of His Hi[redacted]hness aspire after anything better than this? The local Congress vociferously cries for Responsible Government as a better substitute for it for t is but the local miniature edition of its lar[redacted]e prototype in British India in its aims aspirations recruitment and tactics

Assembly and Council Reforms and the people

His Highness the Maharaja while inaugurating the reformed Legislative Council and the Representative Assembly on the 17th March 1924 was pleased to address the members thus in the course of his speech — You will realise that the changes which I am inaugurating to day are fundamental providing as they do for a far closer association of the people with the administration and affording a freer outlet for their natural and legitimate aspirations than seemed possible a few years ago

I am aware that a section of my people are in favour of further radical changes including a wider franchise and increased powers While fully sympathis ng with their ideals I may state that our decision was made after prolonged consultations Each State must evolve its own constitution suited to its own needs and conditions and to the genius of its people Without departing from the fundamental principles of development common to all forms of polity it has been deemed necessary to maintain the character of the Representative Assembly as essentially a body for consultation and reference as well as representation directly voicing the needs of the people and with a constitution sufficiently flexible to expand with the expanding consciousness of the people leaving to the Legislative Council the more formal work of legislation and other functions usually associated with such bodies The rest of the address is devoted to exhorting members as to how they could make their influence felt on the standing committees institutions connected with Local Self Government and representative institutions by self study self discipline and co operation with the executive so as to be able to establish that there is no cleavage of interests between them and the Government This noble exhortation is the key stone of all sane thinking and wise acting in public life How many members then present have held on to it?

Some ten years later in the budget session of the Legislative Council Mr D V Gundappa a member whose services to the State are as varied as they are valued moved some resolutions and interpellations which were disallowed by the Dewan and ex officio President of the Council probably on grounds of expediency he said resolutions being with reference to (i) the constitution of a committee designed to draw up a scheme of Responsible Government and (ii) another to consider questions bearing on the proposed entry of Mysore into the All India Federation It was perhaps with reference to the above and possibly some other topics in view that the Dewan explained himself by observing as follows in his concluding speech of the Birthday Session of the Representative Assembly in June 1934 — Improve by all means what you have got when any improvement is needed but attempt no radical changes Let us like practical men check our ideal by actualities There lies our success and our happiness One is naturally led to enquire whether the Dewan's counsel of progress consistent with caution has been so antiquated as not to outlive barely four years No one is aware of the extraordinary achievements by which the local Congress has apparently succeeded in setting the Cauvery on fire, so as to be able to wrest from unwilling lips the recognition of its party as the champion of Responsible Government in Mysore

General break-down of democracy

The Great European War, which was expected to make the world safe for democracy has failed to produce its desired effect in so many countries that it has shaken the belief of most men in its efficacy Greece which boasted of its constitutionalism sought refuge in a monarchy The democratic constitution of Yugoslavia was put to an end after a lingering life of ten years There is hardly any trace of popular Government in Turkey In Afghanistan, the liberal reforms of Amanullah cost him his throne China's constitution which was hailed as the dawn of a new era has degenerated into misrule According to the Japanese poet, Gonnoski Konai, "The masses are lead to believe that there is scarcely any difference between the Governments formed by Conservatives, Liberals, Coalition or Labour They all seem bent on squandering peoples money in spite of cessation of war time excitements and necessities, and the armed forces in Japan seem to take control under their Emperor Egypt is faring no better Democracy in India which is left to the tender mercies of the so called Indian National Congress has led to such convulsions as should make one dread what may yet be in store for us Gigantic problems and grave economic difficulties which resulted from the Great War distinctly revealed even to the mighty British Empire the inability of Governments based on the party system to deal with them There is now an increased tendency to take expert advice outside the House of Commons as the required ability and assistance could not be found among statesmen The result was the appointment of many Royal Commissions, pooling of all available intellectual resources, the Coalition Government and so forth to meet with the situation which no party Government could cope with Lord Curzon, a great authority, roundly declared that the old system had irretrievably broken down both as a war machine and as a peace machine (House of Lords Debate, June 19, 1918)

Our last word on the Congress move

When such is the sad tale which democracy has to tell in the wide world, and is fast making room for autocracy in some countries and monarchy in others, there is an outcry for it in Mysore from a certain section of the people whose rank and file is being swelled into their own cave of Adulum with those that are either discontented or are in distress, real or imaginary It is therefore no wonder that the cave is rapidly increasing in its capacity to accommodate more and more,

"and all agog
To dash through thick and thin

The party system such as is being organised by the Congressmen furnishes more a contrast to than a comparison with, the system in vogue in Great Britain The State Congress will do well to pause and consider whether by persisting in their course they will not have walked into a fool's paradise and it will not therefore be wise to desist from its propaganda of Responsible Government We are in this connection reminded of a demogogue who used to deliver a political discourse which consisted of the assertion, made and illustrated in an elaborate manner, of a proposition that all the miseries of his country arose from its monarchico aristocratic government and that they could all be cured, as by the stroke of a magic wand, by the introduction of a perfectly democratic form of government—a species of argument vitiated by the assumption of one imaginary cause to all social evils and an equally imaginary cure for them Let the Congress commit no such blunder It is a far cry to attain Responsible Government in Mysore While it is easy to covet a thing beyond our reach, we feel only too painfully conscious that we cannot lay our hand on it all at once We require steps to mount up to shake hands with the celestials above us and these steps are opportunities already in hand which if neglected can never take us an inch nearer to the goal Our representatives and legislators will do well therefore to apply themselves seriously to a careful study of all administrative and legislative matters some of them specializing in finance revenue forest education and other branches of the administration so as to be able to defeat the official specialist on his own favourite ground as for instance Gokhale did in finance In the sphere of local self government there is a wide field open to the non officials to render solid service and leave their landmarks of good work all over the country It is perilous to let a man rule over his brother man before he has established his fitness to do so In 1886 when the working of the then existing consultative council was found somewhat below the mark the old doyen of the Mysore service the late Mr Thambu Chetty pointed to the need of improving it so as to make it really useful but the Dewan (Sir K Seshadri Iyer) recorded thereon his views thus — The ministry in your memo must be an executive council I shall only be too glad to have such a council Where are the men? Even after half a century the echo answers where We would have nothing to do with men who are content to hold office by initialling files signing orders drafted by others or reading speeches written by their confidential advisers We want men who are worth their salt The art of administration is perhaps more difficult than any other, as it calls for a moral and mental equipment of high order coupled with a keen insight into human nature and bold initiative When there was no hesitation to appoint such men in eighties how could there be any now? Dearth of men now as then Have not the present Government accepted the principle of associating a non official with other members of the Council? If it is as yet not given effect to it is probably for want of a right sort of man Even when one or more such are elevated to the Council with portfolio of some department assigned to him or them as the case may be with necessary restrictions and limitations as recently made in Cochin it does not make ours a Responsible Government in its real sense so long as Mysore Constitution remains what it is i e so long as the Maharaja will continue to preside over the political institutions in the country taking a substantial share in the work of the administration and so long as liability to intervention continues in cases of misrule anarchy or disturbance Much has apparently been made of the pronouncements made by the present Secretary of State for India and the Under Secretary in favour of Responsible Government being introduced into Indian States It only means that they do not propose to come in the way of Indian Princes associating the popular element with their respective Governments, but it does not mean that the princes are exempted from their liability to the right of intervention So if anything goes amiss with the Responsible Government so granted it is the Prince concerned that has to account for it For Indian Princes have as we have seen their defined rights and obligations Whereas it is easy for a Prince to transfer some or more of his such rights to his ministry in the name of Responsible Government he can by no means divest himself of his personal responsibility for good Government Hence it is entirely a matter of personal discretion with each Indian ruler to regulate the measure of political advance in his State consistent with his sense of obligations to suzerainty and the fitness of his people for self rule Next it is necessary to bear in mind the bitter lesson of the first conscious advance in the direction of Responsible Government, which was responsible for the introduction of dyarchy in the British Indian Provinces in 1919 Let no such dyarchy or any species thereof disfigure our Constitution for goodness sake The history of the Crown of the United Kingdom is seriously cited as furnishing conclusive proof of an Indian Prince being served by his people with all the greater devotion if he would incur necessary sacrifice of power for their sake Enough has already been said to show clearly how an Indian Prince stands politically first towards his people and secondly towards the Paramount Power Though he may, in theory and often in practice, be an autocrat, no constitutional ruler and much less our beloved Maharaja, has ever been found to transgress the majesty of law, or to infringe the formality of the constitution or convention Hence our profound love and loyalty to our sovereign In the case of the Indian ruler his share in the administration and his responsibility to the Supreme Government are both real and substantial In England, on the other hand, "the result of the evolution of powers of the Cabinet Council is that that body is de facto the Government of Great Britain, the King being but, the visible symbol of power In other words, the Crown has become an emblem of the unity of the nation and the Empire and exercises no direct share in the work of Government The old adage "The King can do no wrong merely means that in all he does as King he acts on the advice of his ministers who are therefore responsible to the nation for the wrong thing done So how the one can be drawn into a precedent with the other is more than what we can comprehend

Apologia

Ours is no destructive criticism, but a constructive one We firmly set our face against stagnation or retrogression, as both would be intolerable in the mouth of a progressive nation There can be no point of indifference in this respect No nation can afford to lull itself into a false sense of security by deluding itself with the solace that if it did not go onward, it would certainly not go backward, for it would undoubtedly go backwards Thus stagnation in a State spells decay and death Let us therefore move on and have changes too, but subject to the vital condition that their music shall impart its harmony to the various strings of the existing political machine The State being a moral and spiritual organism, whatever it has to appropriate from without, it has to take by a process of living assimilation, and not by wholesale borrowing Growth is thus a matter of time, circumstances and environment, and cannot be made to order Again it is much easier to solve most intricate mathematical problems than to arrive at correct human conclusions For while the reasonings in mathematics are liable to no variations or disturbances, human affairs on account of their complexity of facts and forces which are liable to be influenced in various ways get into a tangle which even the wisest often fail to unravel So let those that would shoulder the responsibility of practical administration learn first the fundamental lessons of avoiding one sided observation, hasty conclusions, and the distortion of judgment caused by personal passions and party interests Let them next remember that institutions come to stay, while individuals are so many birds of passage There is no use of setting up a business of finding fault with others, before they themselves have done substantial work in their allotted sphere If we cannot realize the wisdom as crystallized in two words of Gita—"ಪಂಡಿತಾಸ್ಸಮದರ್ಶನ" i e, the wise discern God (in everything), we may easily appreciate the beautiful text in the New Testament, "Honour all men If you would honour your fellowmen, you should know them You will have known no one until you have seen the best in him with the eye of a loving brother To do this is true philosophy of life, the rare mine of human riches

63.K.Health Cess	1,24,200	1,33,931	Provision made as per contra entry on the receipt side with additional provision for payment of arrears of Health Cess collected during 1955-56.

With the modifications proposed above, the abstract figures of the Budget will be as follows:-

	Service Head	Debt Head	Total
Opening Balance on 1-4-56	7,42,458	(-) 3,47,087	3,95,371
Receipts during 56-57	103,41,108	16,83,881	1,20,24,989
TOTAL	1,10,83,566	13,36,794	1,24,20,360
Expenditure during 1956-57	1,05,72,000	16,94,281	1,22,66,281
Closing balance on 31-3-1957	5,11,566	(-) 3,57,487	1,54,079

It is seen that as the accounts for the year 1955-56 have not yet been completed in the Commissioner's office, the actual closing balance of the Corporation under both service and debt heads could not be ascertained Hence, the closing balance in the revised estimate of the Corporation for the ex year 1955-56 has been provisionally accepted as the opening balance for the year 1956-57

Although it was already observed by Government in Government Order No.L 2518-24/CM. 10-55-4 dated 8-6-1955 that the cash account balances under debt heads should be reconciled with the leger accounts of the Corpoation very early, no such reconciliation has been effected so far. In the absence of such correct debt head accounts it is not possible to assess the financial condition of the Corporation. The Commissioner, Corporation of the City of Bangalore is, therefore, requested to arrange for the reconciliation of the cash account balances under Debt Heads with the ledger accounts very early.

There are some defects noticed in the classification of items, for example, slum improvement grant, loans, (capital and receipts) and loan for Low Income Group Housing Scheme are accounted for under "Special Receipts" under the Revenue Heads whereas they should be accounted for under "Debt Heads". Correct classification in such cases should be adopted by the Corporation in future in consultation with the Auditor.

With the modifications proposed as above, the closing balance would be Rs 1,54,079/- as against the prescribed closing balance of Rs 1,00,000/-

Under Section 167 (1) of the City of Bangalore Municipal Corporation Act, 1949, the Corporation should have passed and forwarded the budget for the year 1956-57 to the Government for sanction before the beginning of the official year. But, there has been some delay in the forwarding of the same which should be avoided in future.
